Profile

As a third-year computer science student at Nanjing University of Information Science and Technology, I'm also enrolled in the ALX Software Engineering Program, which I'm studying online and where I've been learning for five months. I've been working on various projects and tasks, and I've documented all of them on my GitHub page, showing my progress and skills in coding.

I speak Arabic fluently, am good at English, and know some French. Right now, I'm also learning Chinese. Being able to speak different languages helps me communicate well with people from different cultures.

I'm really interested in how technology and marketing come together, especially in online shopping and digital ads. I know how to use platforms like Meta Ads and TikTok Ads, which are important for advertising online.

I like solving problems and working with others. I want to help make online shopping and digital ads better, and I'm always learning about new technology to stay ahead.
